

Brock University refuses to meet with CUPE 4207

After hearing several rumours that Brock administration was planning to meet with the union, the president of CUPE 4207 called the government appointed mediator to get clarification. The mediator contacted the administration to get clarification, and was able to report back to the union that Brock does not have any plans to meet with the union, despite the pronouncements on the university website.

Claims by the university administration that it is ready to talk are simply not true. Please contact the university to demand that they settle this strike immediately by ratifying the agreement that the union and the university already signed.
